Mokena People Going Back To Wood For Fuel

The depression is causing many Mokena people to fall back on the old wood pile for fuel in place of coal and gas. Dead trees have been cut up in the timber land around Mokena and hauled to a number of yards and the noise of power buzz saws can be heard about the village. Motors of trucks and tractors are being pressed into service to furnish the power for the buzz saws.

Some of the wood is being secured at a low cost and some of it is free. This old time fuel will be a money saver to many families.

Reniff heard the burglar alarm about one o'clock in the morning. He went out to the chicken house and fired a gun and was answered by another shot. He opened the door of the chicken house. A man ran out, firing shots and shouting. Reniff shot and soon heard a cry of pain. Mrs. Reniff arrived with a pistol and she and her husband emptied their guns at the prowler. Deputy sheriffs notified immediately, came but failed to find any trace of the thief. It is believed he is seriously wounded.

Dem. and Reps. Predict Victory For Francis Loughran

The fight for the office of states' attorney in Will County is claiming a great deal of attention and from the reports coming in from all over Will County and especially from the rural sections, Francis J. Loughran, Democratic candidate for this office, continues to gain support. Election of Mr. Loughran is being predicted by veteran political observers who declare that Mr. Loughran is an able, honest and fearless trial lawyer and indications point to victory for him by one of the greatest pluralities ever given a candidate in Will County. This prediction, comes not alone from Democrats, but also from Republicans who state that Loughran's open, frank and sincere condemnation of Prohibition together with his discussion of other subject-matters of vital importance and have enabled him to gain great popularity among farmers as well as city dwellers and also among Republicans as well as Democrats, according to the reports mentioned.

Mr. Loughran has repeatedly expressed his disapproval of prohibition, which he terms "one of the most drastic and most disastrous pieces of legislation ever enacted in these United States."

"Prohibition has robbed the people of their personal rights and their personal privileges," Mr. Loughran declares. "It has warped and destroyed the morale, especially that of our younger people. It has burglarized honest, decent, upright residents of Will County, and of every other county of their sane, sensible and customary enjoyment, to which they are rightfully entitled. Prohibition has not failed, however, to cause a heavy, unbearable, exorbitant rate of taxation. It has not failed to be the direct causative factor in promoting bankruptcy, destruction and every sort of disaster. This same drastic prohibition law has made it possible for the shaking, nervous, trembling 'trigger finger' of 'Dry Snoopers' in every section of this nation to deliberately ASSASSINATE respectable citizens whom they suspected of having a little of the 'forbidden beverage' in their possession. If I am elected State's Attorney of Will County I shall exercise every effort to aid in causing the 'DRY LAW' to be repealed."

The frank, open, candid and fearless attitude of Mr. Loughran was demonstrated recently at a meeting in Mokena when he publicly declared himself in favor of straightening the "Wolf Road". When he made that declaration Mr. Loughran was thinking of the safety of motorists and pedestrians who are forced to use the road in its existing dangerous course.

"The 'Wolf Road' most certainly should be straightened," Mr. Loughran declared. "The protection of human lives demands that this be done hastily before accidents result in which persons of this or any other community may be seriously or fatally injured. I stand ready and eager and anxious to give to the people of Mokena and vicinity my efforts in causing this road to be straightened. Every humane person, interested in the welfare of his or her fellow being should feel as I feel about the straightening of the 'Wolf Road' which, truly, is a real menace and danger to traffic of every description."

A pledge to keep crooks, racketeers, hoodlums and plunderers out of Will County has been voiced by Mr. Loughran who declares that any pledges made by him shall be kept. "The criminal element shall no longer molest the residents of Will County, if I am elected State's Attorney," Mr. Loughran promises. "The criminals are not for me, because they know that I, as State's attorney, shall not be for them."

Collection of fines and bond forfeitures shall be had with the election of Mr. Loughran as State's Attorney, he pledges.

"Fines and bond forfeitures shall be collected, paid into the county treasury and distributed in the manner and mode and proportion prescribed by law," Mr. Loughran declares. "This accomplishment shall aid somewhat in relieving at least to some extent, the heavy financial burden now existing in Will County."

In addition to the competition prizes, there were door prizes for both the adults and the children.

Democratic and Republican Contingents Invade Mokena

Mr. McCabe spoke impressively of his determination to enforce the laws and to administer the duties of the office of State's attorney to the best of his ability, if elected.

Committeeman Elmer L. Cooper also took the microphone and added his voice to the eloquent and vigorous appeal made by the speakers who urged party loyalty.

Candidates Paul Wunder, W. W. Smith, Wm. Zarley and T. Sprague, accompanying, visited among their many Mokena friends.

The attendance was good and all seemed to enjoy the occasion, a hearty welcome and respectful attention being accorded the visitors.

Candidate for the Legislature John L. Walker called attention to his record, and mentioned particularly his interest in the legislation enacted which made it possible for Mokena to get stone for the highways from the State Reformatory without cost except freight charges.

We are anticipating having visitors from the neighboring Parent-Teachers' Associations of Orland, Mokena, Midlothian and thereabouts with us on this occasion.

Everyone is welcome, so keep this evening open and help us make this the most successful "get-together" of all.

THREE TINLEY BUSINESSES CLOSE THE PAST WEEK

The past week three businesses have gone out of business in Tinley Park. The Tinley Park Grocery and Market which has been operating in the Goessel Building for nearly four years has quit business. The florist shop which John Oesterreich of Washington Heights has been operating in the Vogt building has also quit business. The library which Mr. Clarence Sanders has been running has also been discontinued. Mr. Sanders, however, will continue in business with his flower shop as at present.

ORLAND HIGH SCHOOL TO PRESENT MINSTREL SHOW

The Orland Park High School is going to present a Dixie Minstrel and "Hans von Smash" a one act play on Wednesday, November 9th at 8 p. m. in the High School Auditorium. The pupils and faculty have worked on these productions and the public is cordially invited to attend the performance.

Democratic candidate for Congress James A. Howell of Elgin visited Mokena Tuesday at 2 p. m. coming in from New Lenox where the first stop of the afternoon was made. Charles L. Sylvester and other local Democratic supporters had circulated announcements of his visit to our community, and although the weather was unfavorable for an open air meeting, quite a large number of our citizens gathered along the street to listen to the address which was broadcasted by Mr. Howell from the walk, under the protecting awning in front of the D. Kolber Hardware Store. Mr. Howell has a pleasing personality, is a pleasant speaker and was well received.

James A. Howell

Speaking of the prohibition question, in the course of his remarks at Mokena Mr. Howell said in part:

"Prohibition must go. It has done more perhaps than any other single factor to create the monster of extravagance that the taxpayers have maintained in Washington since its advent. No sound or effective economy program can be inaugurated under the demoralizing and corrupting influence of prohibition."

"This law which is costing the taxpayers of the nation more than a billion dollars a year in enforcement charges and loss of revenue is the greatest single item of extravagance that any government at any time has ever had to bear. This is not taking into account the costly intangible losses resulting from it such as the widespread loss of respect for law and government."

The tour is being sponsored by the Crusaders organization headed by Col. Ira L. Reyes of Chicago.

Francis J. Loughran Democratic candidate for State's Attorney, accompanied the party from Joliet and spoke after the Congressional candidate had finished.

Mr. Loughran expressed his determination to suppress crime and lawlessness throughout the district and to enforce all laws. He renewed his promise of assistance wherever the State's Attorney's office can be of service in securing a speedy settlement of the Wolf Road right of way problem and the completion of the road to the Lincoln Highway at the earliest possible time.

Needy Family In Need of Stove

C. A. Wallin, service officer of the Tinley Park Post of the American Legion advises that a family in his town is badly in need of a soft coal stove for the coming winter. The American Legion will gladly pay for the stove if the price is not too high but anyone having such a stove to sell should remember that same is to be given to charity and the price should be governed accordingly.

Orland Girl Is Charming Bride

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized last Thursday evening, October 21st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cooper in Orland Park when their daughter Pearl was united in marriage with Jacob Kramer, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kramer, Sr., also of Orland Park.

The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Paul T. Sanders of Orland Park, took place at 5 o'clock. The bride was charming in white charmuse and veil and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Miss Ruth Andres of Tinley Park was the bride's maid. She was dressed in pink organdie and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. The groom was attended by Mr. George Munch as best man.

The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate families of the bridal couple.

The home was prettily decorated in oak leaves and chrysanthemums. At the close of the ceremony, a reception was held and a five course wedding dinner was served to forty guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Kramer have gone to Washington, D. C., on a wedding trip. They will be at home at the home of the bride's parents after the 31st of October. The many friends of this popular young couple wish them an abundance of happiness.

New Route For Southwest Highway Is Announced

Mayor Wm. Kollman of Orland Park received a new map of the Southwest Highway from Robert Kingery, of the Chicago Regional Planning association Tuesday morning. The new map shows a complete change in the routing of the Southwest Highway in this part of Cook County, whereby Orland Park will be eliminated entirely. The new map indicates that the Southwest Highway route change would start from 131st street in Palos Park and run westward to Wolf Road thence south on Wolf Road to the present intersection of the Will County end of the Southwest Highway.

It is pointed out that this route would be a cheaper one than by going thru the forest preserve at Orland Park where expensive fills would be required. According to the new routing only a mile and a half of paving would be required on the Wolf road to bring it up to 143rd from where Wolf Road is paved southward to Mokena.

Mr. Kingery has made it very plain that he is opposed to having the Southwest Highway routed thru the forest preserve at Orland, even tho the Cook County Board of Commissioners, the Cook County Highway department, the state highway department and the village board of Orland Park have approved the route as surveyed thru the forest preserve at Orland Park the past summer.

A STORY FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER RABBIT MEETS LIGHTFOOT

PETER RABBIT was on his way back from the pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green Forest. He had just seen Mr. and Mrs. Quack and their ten young Quacks start on their long, terrible journey to the far away Southland. Farewells are always rather sad, and this particular farewell had left Peter with a lump in his throat, a queer choky feeling.

"If I were sure that they would return next spring it wouldn't be so bad," he muttered. "It's those terrible guns. I know what it is to have to watch out for them. Farmer Brown's Boy used to hunt me with one of them, but he doesn't any more, and he won't let anybody else near the Old Brier Patch, with one or over here in the Green Forest. But even when he did hunt me it wasn't anything like what the Quacks have to go through. If I kept my eyes open I could tell when a hunter was coming, and could hide in a hole if I wanted to. I never had to worry about my meals. But with the Quacks it is a thousand times worse. They've got to eat while making that long journey, and they can eat only where there is the right kind of food. Hunters with terrible guns know where those places are and hide there until the ducks come, and the ducks have no way of knowing whether the hunters are there or not. That isn't hunting. It's—

"I Hope They Will Get Through All Right," Said He.

"Well, what is it? What are you talking to yourself about, Peter Rabbit?"

Peter looked up with a start to find the soft beautiful eyes of Lightfoot the Deer gazing down at him over the top of a little hemlock tree.

"It's awful," declared Peter. "It's worse than unfair. It doesn't give them any chance at all."

"I suppose it must be so if you say so," replied Lightfoot, "but suppose you tell me what all this awfulness is about."

Peter grinned. Then he began at the beginning and told Lightfoot all about Mr. and Mrs. Quack and the awful dangers they must face on their long journey to the far away Southland and back again in the spring, all because of the heartless hunters with terrible guns. Lightfoot listened and his great soft eyes were filled with pity for the troubles of the Quack family.

"I hope they will get through all right," said he, "and I hope they will get back in the spring. It is bad enough to be hunted by men at one time of the year, as no one knows better than I do, but to be hunted in the spring as well as in the fall is more than twice as bad. Men are strange creatures. I do not understand them at all. None of the people of the Green Forest would think of doing such terrible things. I suppose it is quite right to hunt others in order to get enough to eat, though I am thankful to say that I have never had to do that, but to hunt others just for the fun of hunting is something I cannot understand at all. And yet that is what men seem to do it for. I guess the trouble is they never have been hunted themselves and don't know how it feels. Sometimes I think I'll hunt one some day to teach him a lesson. What are you laughing at, Peter?"

"At the idea of you hunting a man," replied Peter. "Your heart is right, Lightfoot, but you are too timid and gentle to frighten any one. Big as you are, I wouldn't fear you."

With a single swift bound Lightfoot sprang out in front of Peter. He stamped his sharp hoofs, lowered his handsome head until the sharp points of his horns pointed straight at Peter, lifted the hair along the back of his neck, and made a motion as if to plunge at Peter. His eyes, which

HUSBAND'S DAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE'S Mother's day and Father's day, Observed and honored by the young. And yet one fellow goes his way Unwept, unhonored and unsung. There's Raisin day, to celebrate The raisin, with a reason, too; But there's a man, almost as great As raisins, who has something due.

A wife should have a day she thought About him as the Scripture bids; About him as her husband, not As just the father of her kids; One day of all the year all his, When each man's wife, from sea to sea, Would love him some for what he is, And some for what he used to be.

Of course, she thought of him at first, But now she thinks about the house, The parlor rug that looks the worst, The maid, the club, the pantry mouse, The church's work, the children's play, Some other fellow's worth or wit— There ought to be a Husband's day To think of husbands just a bit. © 1932, Douglas Malloch.—WNU Service.

Peter had always thought so soft and gentle, seemed to flash fire.

"Oh!" cried Peter in a faint, frightened-sounding voice, and leaped to one side before it entered his foolish little head that Lightfoot was just pretending.

"I—I didn't know you could look so terribly fierce," stammered Peter. "Those horns look really dangerous when you point them that way. Why—why, what is that hanging to them? It looks like bits of old fur. Have you been tearing somebody's coat, Lightfoot?" Peter's eyes were wide with wonder and suspicion. (© 1932, by T. W. Burgess.)—WNU Service.

GOOD SOUPS

A SOUP is always a part of the meal that we feel should never be omitted. It warms the stomach and prepares it for the heartier foods that follow and is of itself a nourishment when prepared with cream and vegetables.

Squash Soup.

Mix together one cupful of boiled squash that has been mashed and put through a colander, two tablespoonfuls of minced celery, one teaspoonful of salt and sugar, one tablespoonful of onion juice, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and a pinch of mace. Prepare two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour mixed together. Add a little of a quart of milk, stir until well blended, then add the remainder and heat slowly. Beat the squash until light and mix with the other ingredients. Heat very hot and serve at once.

Mock Bisque.

Scald one quart of milk with three-fourths of a cupful of bread crumbs, one small onion stuck with six cloves, a sprig of parsley and a bit of bay leaf. Remove the seasonings and rub through a sieve. Add two teaspoonfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of canned tomatoes and cook fifteen minutes. Reheat the milk and bring to the boiling point. Add the tomatoes, stirring gently. Add one-third of a cupful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne. Serve with croutons.

Pea Soup.

This is so simple that a child may prepare it. Take one can each of pea soup and canned milk, or rich sweet milk if at hand. Mix well, heat and serve hot with croutons.

In the making of soups as in any other food preparation much depends upon the cook. All ingredients should be carefully measured, seasoning appropriate should be added. Mace, cloves, nutmeg, thyme, bay leaf all play an important part. The same ingredients blended with lack of care may be flat, stale and insipid, or a royal feast. A teaspoonful of sugar brings out the flavor of many of the vegetables and is an addition to most soups.

Scotland Yard Housed on Site of Royal Home

Scotland Yard, the popular name for the headquarters of the Metropolitan police in London, for many years was located in Great Scotland yard, a short street off Whitehall, London. The name Scotland Yard was derived from the fact that at one time this had been the site of a palace built for the reception of Scottish kings and chieftains when they visited London. The last of the Scottish royal family to reside in this palace was Margaret queen of Scots, sister of Henry VIII and wife of James IV, who fell at the battle of Flodden field. During the reign of Queen Elizabeth it fell into ruin, but some time later was replaced by government offices. It became the residence, among others, of John Milton, who stayed there while acting as Latin secretary to Oliver Cromwell; Beau Fielding, who died there; Sir John Denham, the poet, and Hugo Jones, the architect. It was also the home, for a time, of Sir Christopher Wren and of Sir John Vanburgh. Early in the Nineteenth century it served for a while as the Marshalsea court, and in 1829, when Sir Robert Peel planned a new police force, Scotland Yard was made the principal station of the force. In 1890 the headquarters were moved to New Scotland yard on the Thames embankment, close to Westminster bridge. These new premises were designed by Richard Norman Shaw (1831-1912), and are considered to be his finest work. As a rule the "New" is dropped, and the headquarters are generally known by the old familiar term "Scotland Yard."

Indian Wampum

John Fitzpatrick says that wampum was made "of a comparatively rare shell of great beauty, which was pierced longitudinally and strung upon deer skin thongs. These strings were woven into bands or belts, and the size of the belt was generally proportioned to what the Indians considered the significance of the occasion."—Washington Star.

American Fairies Known to Indian Mythology

This is no fairy tale although it is about fairies—a purely American species of fairies. A bulletin just issued by the Smithsonian Institution warns us to watch out for Ikkareys—especially if they happen to be Kitaxrihars. These are ever-present fairies in the mythology of the Karuk Indians of northern California. They are still feared and revered in the Karuk annual ceremonies. The Ikkareys, the bulletin points out, were the old-time people who were in America before the Indians came and who turned into animals, plants, rocks, mountains, plots of ground, parts of houses, dances and abstractions when the Karuks came. A simple Ikkarey, the Karuks believe, is harmless, but the Kitaxrihars were a special class which were savage and were petrified into various rocks.—Pathfinder Magazine.

"In desperation you made a plan. On the tenth of November you drove to Griggsby. You arrived in Ashfield soon after noon and put your horses in the stable of the Westminster hotel. About four-thirty that afternoon you came to this shop. You told your stepson that you were ill and wished to lie down. He took you into the little office built against the side of the shop in the rear where there was a desk and a lounge. You told Royce to let you sleep and not to call you. Then you closed the door and locked it. A loaded revolver and some shells to fit it lay on the desk. You had often seen it lying there. You put Royce's rubbers in your coat pocket to disguise your tracks. You knew that Bumpy Brown wore a pair of the same size. You took the revolver. You put on Royce's overalls. At five-twenty or thereabouts Royce had closed the shop and gone upstairs where he lay reading a paper. You put the revolver in your pocket, opened the window and climbed through it. You crossed the bridge going west with a package under your arm walking fast. The package contained a broad-brimmed hat which you had borrowed from Algyre. A man I know saw you. You wore a cap on your head. You carried in your pocket the rubbers, the revolver and cartridges, a light-colored slouch hat and a colored handkerchief.

"You hurried up the road in the darkness. You left the broad-brimmed hat at some point not far from the bridge in Amity Dam. You reached your home about seven. You covered your face with the handkerchief. You put on the light-colored slouch hat and the rubbers. You rapped at the door. Your son opened it. You had expected that your wife would be standing before you. It was her habit to open the door. She was the one you had come to kill. You were facing not her but your son. You had to see it through now. You couldn't turn back. You entered, limping like Bumpy Brown, the boy fleeing before you. You began to shoot. You wounded your wife. You came close to her. Your weapon was pointed at her face. You did not shoot then. You were still pulling on the trigger. You did not know that you had to release the trigger to cock the weapon. Therefore your wife escaped. You had to kill her father to get away.

"Now the rats began to gnaw. They smelled blood. You fled in the darkness. You put on the broad-brimmed hat. You were seen at different points on the road hurrying through the darkness. You tucked the handkerchief and slouched hat into a wall-hole. Opposite Brown's cove you met the crook Algyre. He had helped to make the plan. He took the revolver and cartridge from your hands. He crossed the river and planted them on Bumpy Brown. He was to get a thousand dollars for helping you. He got only half of it because you were afraid to draw so much money out of the bank at that time. I have Algyre's confession in my pocket.

"You went on. You hid the broad-brimmed hat in a hollow stump and covered it with rotten wood. You put a cap on your head. You reached the Ashfield bridge about eight-thirty. You threw the rubbers and overalls into the west channel. You entered the open window of Royce's office. You unlocked the door and called him. He let you out of the front entrance. You crossed the east channel on your way to the hotel. A little beyond the bridge a man told you of the crime which had been committed at your house. You hurried to the stable and got your horses. You told different men around you that Bumpy Brown must have done the shooting—that you had put him off your place once and that he had sworn to get even. You drove rapidly up the road.

"Now, when you got home you did not drop the reins and run to find your stricken wife as an honest man would have done. You went straight to the stable to see that the colts were properly cared for. That one circumstance was like a millstone tied to your neck. It set a man thinking in your village, and his thinking has helped me to surround you with a chain of evidence that no power can break. When you saw your danger you tried to kill this boy and destroy certain links in his possession. You failed, and your failure pushed you a mile nearer hell. You were getting close to the red gates. The deep-laid, cunning plot against Bumpy Brown crumbled.

"You lived in a growing, blistering heat in that house of mourning with your good wife and son whose faith in you must have been like a crown of thorns. But the worst was to come. Here was the girl who must have been nearer to you than all else. Home and son and wife and honor and good repute were as chaff compared to her. She was in sore trouble yet you dared not lift a hand to help her. My G—d! What a thumbscrew that must have been!"

Doolittle was trembling. His mouth was open. He covered his face with his hands. Dumb with remorse and astonishment he was an abject and wretched figure.

"My story is near its end," the colonel went on. "When the girl was at Betsy Spenslow's with her child you went by night to comfort and reassure her. When you were with her in the spruce thicket a witness of mine heard you say to her that you would kill anyone who came between you and her and that you would take her to Australia."

These words came in a hoarse whisper from the lips of the murderer: "It's a lie."

"No, it isn't. That instant we took a photograph of you and the girl. Here it is. Do you want to see it?"

The query was scarcely spoken when Doolittle pitched forward out of his chair. He lay sprawled, face downward on the floor, a limp, quivering, helpless, shrunken mass of ruined manhood.

CHAPTER XIV

Shad's Appeal to a Higher Court.

Doolittle recovered from his fainting fit. He did not confess, as the colonel hoped he would do. The sheriff took him to the county jail that day. Colonel Blake and Shad went to the hotel for dinner and waited for the evening train. As they were sitting together in their room the colonel said:

"Tomorrow is Christmas. Bumpy Brown and your friend Bony are coming down to spend the day with us.

They Embraced and Kissed Each Other.

Do you realize how old Bumpy has been growing? He's a whale of a man."

The colonel lighted his cigar and smoked a moment. In the silence Shad wondered what was behind the words of his chief.

"These are the facts," Blake began. "Bumpy had learned that Doolittle—a married man—was making love to his daughter. He warned her against him. Then he warned his daughter's seducer and probably in rather hot language Doolittle pushed him off his place. Bumpy may in his anger have sworn to get even. After that whenever he was in his cups he d-d Cy Doolittle. When he was indicted for murder and his life was in peril he must have suspected the truth that Doolittle had tried to get rid of his wife so that he could have Carrie. But old Bumpy held his peace. Why? Not even to save his life would he bring discredit on his daughter. To him death was better than shame. I doubt if in all the records of human action we may find a nobler sense of chivalry. It is curious that this shabby old thinker, often tipsy about the countryside, should now have us all sitting humbly at his feet. Of course he wanted the girl to marry Royce. Now, Royce is an honest but rather stupid fellow—a good deal of a dunce, I would say. I don't wonder that the girl wouldn't have him. Doolittle and Algyre made a tool of him in one way and another—notably in buying the rubbers, in building up the alibi of the guilty man and in misleading the detectives. I have never thought that his brain could create the mystery we have had to solve."

That Christmas day at Colonel

Blake's house was never forgotten by those who had a part in it. The reward of five thousand dollars was distributed according to the plan of Shad and his chief.

To Bumpy Brown the income on two thousand five hundred dollars for life.

To Bony a sum sufficient for one year's board and schooling.

To Shad a certificate of deposit for the balance.

Bumpy cooked the oysters and the turkey and by request prepared the mashed potatoes with unlimited allowances of cream and butter. Then the cook was called to the table. He said:

"No, sir, by Jeedix, I'm too scared an' nervous to take a place in the front ranks. Besides I'm liable to bust out a-cryin' any minute—you've been so good to me. I'm goin' to keep close to the cellar door so I can retreat if I have to. I suppose I'll get used to bein' rich an' happy, but you'll have to give me a little time."

Bony said that Miss Spenslow had "mellered up" a good deal—that she was not so anxious to keep him from being ruined.

Bumpy was finally induced to come and drink his coffee with them. Colonel Blake arose and with characteristic humor reviewed the career of Shad Morryson. He told of the adventures at Center Pond and Morris-town and introduced him as an expert detective. He was curious to see what the boy would say.

It was then that Sheridan Morryson made the little speech now quoted from his memoirs:

"Colonel and Mrs. Blake: The little things I have done are partly due to your faith in a homeless lad and to your interest in his welfare. For all that I thank you. I must also thank Bony for his help and friendship. I do not forget the friendship, the kindness and the good heart of Mr. Brown. I may know handsome men, but I shall never know a better man. There is one whose name you know to whom I am more indebted than to all others. That is a debt which I can only pay, which I shall gladly pay, with my life and my devotion if I am allowed to do so. I hope that I am not breaking the rules of the court in saying this much. I fear that I am like a bee that has been forbidden to trespass in a flowery meadow."

The colonel laughed. Then he turned to Mrs. Blake and said: "Mother, this boy is not like other boys of his age. He's really quite a man. If he and Ruth want to be engaged I suppose that we may as well take down the trespass sign."

"Bees can't read, anyhow," the gentle lady answered with a smile. "They would better part, if they have to, before they are married than after they are."

Shad went to Ruth's side. They embraced and kissed each other. A gale of merry laughter had arisen. In the midst of it Colonel and Mrs. Blake and Bumpy and Bony came and embraced the happy youngsters.

Again a scrap from the memoirs:

"Yes, it was unusual. I say only that it was good for us. We were in the same school and college until we were twenty-two. Our love filled the years with happiness and inspiration and mutual understanding. We helped each other. We knew each other. We had learned the gentle art of keeping step. We were in no danger of falling out when we were married the day after our graduation—a trouble that comes too often of slight acquaintance. Bumpy Brown came with his parrot and a handsome gift of money. Robert Royce and his wife Carrie, and Bony, then an able law clerk, and Betsy Spenslow and Doctor Gorse and Mr. and Mrs. Smithers were at the wedding. We were a famous pair and people came from far and wide to greet us.

"For twenty-five years we have lived and wrought together. Time has been kind to us. There is still gold in her hair and the glow of the corn-flower in her eyes and the tint of roses in her cheeks. I—well, I am still a lover. Have we not seen enough of the peril of straying to keep us in the straight way?"

[THE END.]

Temple Built to Honor Great Egyptian Goddess

The temple at Denderah is one of the most famous temples in all Egypt. According to the historical facts which the scientists have been able to dig out of the hieroglyphic records, it was restored by Pharaoh Pepi I, who lived four thousand years ago in the Sixth dynasty.

There is a high wall round the temple, with a majestic gateway, and to walk through this gateway is to be awed by the majesty of the columns of the entrance hall. The capitals of these columns are graven in the image of Hathor, the goddess to whom the temple is dedicated. She is represented as a woman with the ears of a heifer and with hair flowing down both sides of her head.

A center aisle leads through the Hall of Columns to the shrine proper. On each side of this aisle are chambers which are identified by hieroglyphic inscriptions denoting their particular uses. Also there is a gallery encircling the shrine and from this still other chambers open.

On the roof of the temple is a shrine to Osiris and here there are hieroglyphs describing the ritual of the Osiris cult.

With the legislature agreed to make another effort to enact relief legislation into law before the November election, the lower branch took up consideration of three relief bills as a special order of business on October 13. The bills to be considered are the county optional sales tax and the gas tax diversion. The sales tax bill would permit county boards, by a two-thirds vote, to impose a county sales tax of 1 per cent. The gas tax diversion bill would permit use of the counties' share of the gas tax for relief purposes. The senate has no definite program, but will await the action of the house.

The "not sufficient funds" bill has been erased from the statute books as a result of the signing by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson of a repeal measure. The "N. S. F." bill, authorizing payment of school teachers' salaries by checks issued as a lien on taxes, was passed at one of the previous special sessions. Its repeal was sought to remove objections of Chicago bankers to the issuance of tax-anticipation warrants so long as the "N. S. F." checks could be used to pay taxes.

Reports for the fiscal year that ended June 30, compiled in the plant inspection office of the state department of agriculture, show that 853 nursery establishments, comprising 6,851 acres, were in operation and subject to state inspection during the past season. Despite popular belief, various so-called utility holding companies, which have collapsed recently, are not public utilities, according to an official statement issued for the Illinois Commerce commission by Chairman G. Gale Gilbert. Hence, they are not under jurisdiction of the commission and no blame can be attached to the commission for their failure.

In a survey of the activities of the marketing division of the state department of agriculture, recently made, it is indicated that modern methods in marketing perishable farm products have made rapid gains in popularity within the last few years, and co-operative marketing associations are increasing in numbers and in the volume of commodities they handle.

Protection of the pension rights of Chicago policemen, firemen and municipal employees was assured with the signing of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson of three house bills amending the pension law so that pensions may be based on salaries of 1931 instead of on current reduced pay rates.

More than a score of diseases, instead of the one loosely called "elm wilt," have been discovered attacking and destroying Illinois elms, botanists of the Illinois natural history survey have made known in announcing preliminary findings in a two-year research on the problem pursued throughout the state.

Moving to prevent possible mine area disorders, National Guardsmen raided the headquarters of striking miners in Taylorville and placed between 600 and 700 of them under arrest. Six hundred striking coal miners voluntarily placed themselves under arrest shortly afterward, increasing to more than 1,200 the number crowding courthouse rooms. The diggers had assembled for the observance of the anniversary of the Virden massacre thirty-four years ago, and had crowded into a second-floor hall across the street from the Christian county courthouse. Three more companies of the One Hundred and Thirtieth infantry, Illinois National Guard, were ordered to Taylorville.

Mrs. Herbert Gullickson in Joliet entertained the Sewing Mite Club Tuesday evening. Mrs. Henry Breidert will entertain the club at a card party in her home Tuesday night.

Henry Launn died Tuesday in Chicago, he is a son-in-law of Mrs. Adam Sangmeister. Mrs. Launn was formerly Lena Sangmeister of Green Garden.

Irving Knight had his car stolen Wednesday night in Joliet at 516 Meeker Avenue, just as he pulled up to the curb with Miss Mary Bodner at her home when two strangers approached, saying "Get out and go on home". No effort was made to rob them, but the car was taken. Police were notified and Friday his car was found at Raynor and Keely St. only the blankets and tools were missing, the car was in good shape otherwise. The Young People of the St. Peters Evangelical Church Sunday School, Miss Lankenau's class entertained at a party Friday night in the church parlor. Games were played and lunch was served consisting of pumpkin pie ice cream, and candy.

Farm Progress Will Be Dramatized at Chicago

Dramatizing in spectacular manner the year's progress in American agriculture, the far-famed International Live Stock Exposition will open its doors for its 33rd anniversary celebration at the Chicago Stock Yards, November 26th to December 3rd.

Secretary-manager B. H. Heide asserts that the 1932 International will be a fitting Bi-Centennial Exposition of the remarkable forward strides made in American farming since the birth 200 years ago of the nation's first president-farmer, George Washington.

Rush of Early Entries
Early entries arriving the Exposition headquarters indicate that every foot of exhibit space, every stall in the mammoth Exposition amphitheatre and 22 adjoining buildings, will be filled to capacity with the finest specimens of the velds and feed-lots of the land.

The fact that the prize money will remain the same in most all departments of the show, and in a few instances will even be higher than in past years, is attracting the patronage of livestockmen and farmers throughout the continent to the Chicago Exposition, where a blue ribbon carries with it the stamp of national superiority and prestige.

Lift Ban on Corn Borer Area
Because the ban on corn from corn borer infested regions of the continent will be entirely lifted this year, officials of the International Grain and Hay Show, largest crops show in the world, and a department of the International Live Stock Exposition, look for the 1932 display of that crop to be the biggest ever seen anywhere. Corn from infested territory will be admitted to competition subject to the inspection of the Illinois Department of Agriculture.

Entries for individual livestock classes will close on November 1st, the management announces; on November 10th for the International Grain and Hay Show; and on November 19th for the carload lot classes of cattle, sheep and swine, the latter show in itself being the world's largest display of prime market animals.

Protection of Trees Along Roads Urged

With thousands of trees being planted in the state to enhance the beauty of the roadside and provide shade and color for the highways, it will be necessary for motorists and the public in general to aid in the protection of these if they are to reach maturity, it is pointed out by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor Club.

Learns to Relax

LORETTA YOUNG looks tranquil and fresh even after hours of working under intense studio lights. Weariness, she has found, comes hand in hand with hunger, so she staves off both by having a tray of soda or graham crackers with milk or tomato juice near the set. Then between scenes she nibbles and sips—and is refreshed.

In this connection, attention is called to the wording of posters in the public parks of Spain, which apply equally well to America. These posters read as follows:

"Ye who pass by and would raise your hand against me, harken ere you harm me. I am the heat of your hearth on the cold winter nights; the friendly shade screening you from the summer sun; and my fruits are refreshing draughts quenching your thirst as you journey on. I am the beam that holds your house, the board of your table, the bed on which you lie, and the lumber that builds your best. I am the handle of your hoe, the door of your homestead, the wood of your cradle and the shell of your coffin. I am the bread of kindness and the flower of purity. Ye who pass by listen to my prayer—HARM ME NOT."

Indifference Threatens Bond Issue Says Will Co., Farm Adviser

Indifference and misunderstanding, net opposition, threaten a favorable majority vote on the $20,000,000 emergency relief bond issue, according to a statement issued by the Illinois Agricultural Association and made public this week by L. W. Braham, Will county farm adviser.

"It is difficult for the average voter to understand that a bond issue can reduce property taxes," says the I. A. A. statement. "Most bond issues mean higher taxes. But now we have something new, a bond issue to cut down property taxes, and people who read as they run and don't take time to inform themselves about this measure are likely to take snap judgement and vote against it."

It is pointed out that if the bond issue receives a majority vote based on the vote cast for members of the state legislature, the $18,750,000 already spent for unemployment relief will be repaid by withholding (only from counties using state relief funds) part of each county's share of the state gasoline tax in proportion to emergency relief funds used therein. No increase in the gas tax will follow.

But if the bond issue fails there will be added for 1932 approximately 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the present tax rate for state purposes on real and personal property throughout Illinois. This will nearly double the 1931 state tax rate of 39 cents.

Mr. Braham also pointed out that the bond issue will be on a separate small ballot. It will not be on the large candidates' ballot, and failure to vote on the bond issue while voting for candidates for office is the same as voting "No."

"The very basis of safety to American agriculture is protective tariff on farm products. The Republican Party originated and proposes to maintain the protective tariff on agricultural products. We will even widen that tariff further where necessary to protect agriculture. Ninety per cent of your market is at home, and I PROPOSE TO RESERVE THIS MARKET TO THE AMERICAN FARMER."

"Has the Democratic Party ever proposed or supported a protective tariff on farm products? Has it ever given one single evidence of protection of the home market to the American farmer from the products raised by peasant labor on cheap land abroad?"

"There are this minute 2,000,000 cattle in the northern states of Mexico seeking market. The price is about $2.50 per 100 pounds on the south bank of the Rio Grande. It is $4.50 on the north bank—AND ONLY THE TARIFF WALL BETWEEN."

"Bad as our prices are, if we take comparable prices of farm products today in the United States and abroad, I am informed by the Department of Agriculture that you will find that except for the guardianship of the tariff, butter could be imported for 25 per cent below your prices, pork products for 30 per cent below your prices, lamb and beef products from 30 to 50 per cent below

And They Want Us To Take Down Our Tariffs

Forty-one foreign countries have tariffs on agricultural products as high, or higher than ours... thirty-seven big and little foreign countries made eighty-seven upward revisions of their tariffs between 1925 and 1928

The Hawley-Smoot Farm Tariff was not passed until June, 1930.

Under the flexible provisions of our tariff act any foreign country may ask for a hearing and receive due consideration upon any tariff rate which they think should be adjusted. The record shows that 95 per cent of all such hearings are based on agricultural rates.

PRESIDENT HOOVER SAYS:

your prices, flaxseed for 35 per cent below your prices, beans for 40 per cent below your prices, and wool 30 per cent below your prices. BOTH CORN AND WHEAT COULD BE SOLD IN NEW YORK FROM THE ARGENTINE AT PRICES BELOW YOURS AT THIS MOMENT WERE IT NOT FOR THE TARIFF. I SUPPOSE THESE ARE GASTLY JESTS!

"The removal of or reduction of the tariff on farm products means a flood of them into the United States from every direction, and either you would be forced to still further reduce your prices or your products would rot on your farms."

"The main thing these foreign countries want is entrance for their surplus agricultural products into our markets. Many of these countries would decrease their tariffs against our industrial goods tomorrow in exchange for reduction on their farm products, but that is no help to our farmers."

"What the Democratic Party proposes is to reduce your farm tariffs. Aside from ruin to agriculture, such an undertaking in the midst of this depression WILL DISTURB EVERY POSSIBILITY OF RECOVERY."

Corn Belt Hatcheries Plan for The Coming Hatching Season

While the big incubators of the Corn Belt Hatcheries are not in active operation at this time, it is nevertheless a busy season for this great Illinois organization. It is the season of careful selection of flocks which will supply the mammoth hatcheries with eggs in the winter and spring.

Every hen which furnishes an egg for this company must pass an "intelligence" test under professors who know their onions. She must be duly accredited and blood tested before she can join the "four hundred" of the Corn Belt society.

This year for the first time the Corn Belt has added scientific blood testing to its regular accrediting of flocks. The local company has been watching university and government laboratory experiments for several years, until the system and methods developed were accorded the highest rating. Then, and not till then, did the Corn Belt make this test one of the requirements for all contributing flocks.

Since the first of October the work of blood testing has been going on, and it will not be completed until the middle of December. The Corn Belt has thirteen hatcheries with headquarters in Gibson City, Illinois. Four crews of five experts each are working, each headed by a university trained specialist.

They will test not less than 125,000 hens before the work of accrediting of flocks is completed. These tests are required of every flock producing eggs for the company's incubators. A substantial premium over the market price of eggs is paid by the Corn Belt for properly accredited eggs.

The Antigen or Glass Plate method is used in blood testing. A drop of blood is taken from under the pullet's wing, mixed with a drop of antigen, and placed between two glass plates, where in a half minute's time the state of the blood is known. If the hen is a "reactor" it means that is infected with bacillary white diarrhea and must be removed from the flock. She will be a poor layer, and her chicks will be subject to dysentery.

All the reacting birds are removed from the flock leaving in the parent flock only hens that are free from pullorum infection. The Corn Belt's rigid insistence on this will mean healthy chicks for their thousands of customers, many of whom are located in this section.

First Taste of Cocoa
The manufacture of cocoa and chocolate, one of the principal industries of Holland, was introduced into that country as long ago as 1679.

Public Service to Try Out A New Billing System

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has been granted permission by the Illinois Commerce Commission to try out an experiment in billing gas and electricity users, gone from home when the meter reader makes his regular visit. The test will be made in "District E" of the company, comprising parts of Lake and of McHenry counties. Under the new plan, if the meter reader fails to gain access to a customer's home on his regular trip and thus not read the customer's meter, the company will send the customer an estimated bill based on that customer's average monthly consumption of gas, electricity or both. Payment of the estimated bill will not be obligatory but if paid the amount will be credited to the customer's account. The benefit of the new plan, the company contends, is that customers will pay a virtually correct bill each month instead of paying a small minimum charge for several months perhaps when no readings are obtained, and then at a later date, when a reading is obtained, paying a large accumulated bill in one lump sum.

Shoe-String Potatoes 10¢
Buttered Broccoli 50¢
Apricot Cream Dessert 48¢
Bread and Butter 10¢
Demi-tasse 5¢

And here are the recipes for the dishes which are not familiar to everyone:

Iced Tomato Juice: Mix together the contents of two 12½-

Apricot Cream Dessert: Beat one cup cream, and add one-third cup confectioner's sugar, a few drops of almond flavoring and one-fourth cup chopped nuts. Break up four vanilla wafers and add, and put in the refrigerator tray for several hours. Scoop out onto dessert plates, and lay the drained apricots from a No. 2 can around the base.

"WAS YOU THERE--?"

AN unusually informal study of that world famous traveler, hunter, lecturer and side-splitting gagster, Baron Munchausen, who has a weakness for combining several of his traveling costumes, man-aging, by that strange genius which has made him the talk of forest and plain, to retain the worst features of each.

The Baron in the above portrait is in the act of scowling down a look of scepticism he noticed on a number of his listeners' faces. He demands loyalty from his following and gets it... in the form of roars of laughter which have already won him a place among the ace comedians of the air waves.

Baron Munchausen (known to thousands of theater-goers as Jack Pearl) is heard each Thursday, beginning at 10 o'clock Eastern Standard Time, from station WEAF, over a nation-wide NBC network, as one of the features of the thrice-weekly magic carpet programs, which also bring listeners the world's finest dance music; the voices of Evelyn Herbert and Robert Halliday; the thrilling and authentic Crime Case Dramatizations, and the breezy chatter of Walter O'Keefe, pilot of the famous carpet.

Better Breakfasts

Bitter words at breakfast make a bleak and bitter day—
Better breakfasts make you blythe and drive the blues away!

THAT'S the whole explanation of why we have been publishing for some time past suggestions of how to vary your breakfasts and make them a meal to look forward to instead of mere "grub" to be grieved at. And we hope that you'll agree that our efforts are worth while when you glance over the following menu.

Blueberries and Cream with Dry Cereal
Deviled Cream Sauce on Whole Wheat Toast
Coffee
Gooseberry Jam
And here's the way to make the second dish:
Make a cream sauce of three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour and two cups diluted evaporated milk. Add the mashed contents of a 5½-ounce can of deviled ham, and stir until smooth and hot. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and serve over hot, buttered whole wheat bread. Serves six.

The Best Coffee

And to make sure that this is really a better breakfast worthy of the name, and not just one of those ordinary every-day breakfasts, use a brand of coffee that is vacuum packed. Bitter coffee leads to bitter words, but the brands that are vacuum packed give you the full flavor and aroma of this rich breakfast drink. Nothing is flatter, on the other hand, than coffee that has been exposed to the air, allowing much of the flavor and aroma to escape.*

UNDER FROZEN STARS

By GEORGE MARSH

ILLUSTRATED BY William Molt
W.N.U. SERVICE
COPYRIGHT BY PENN. PUB. CO.

A fast moving story of romance and adventure connected with the fur trade of the far northern sections of Canada, which breathes the icy atmosphere of the frozen northland. You will enjoy every line, every paragraph, every installment, as it appears serially in our columns.

Introducing George Marsh and Our New Serial Story

Here is a brief introduction to our readers of the noted American writer whose latest story will be our next serial. The story is "Under Frozen Stars," by George Marsh.

George Marsh is a lawyer who likes the writing of stories more than pleading cases before the bar, and who prefers the romance and adventure of the Far North as themes for his stories. He was born at Lansingburgh, N. Y., but has resided in Providence, R. I., for many years, where he practiced law before he began writing stories. He served as a member of the state legislature for two terms, served in the army air service during the war on the Meuse-Argonne front, and was a member of the U. S. A. of the Aero-Conference of the Peace conference at Paris. His long list of stories includes such as "Flash, the Lead Dog," "Men Marooned," "The Valley of Voices," "Trailers of the Trails," and "Sled Trails and White Waters," all of them tales of the Far North. He is one of America's popular writers of swift-action fiction.

"Under Frozen Stars," is, we believe, the best of Mr. Marsh's long list of far northern stories. It has that swift moving action that attracts and holds interest. You will like Jim Stuart as a hero, and you will love, as Jim Stuart did, petite Aurore Le Blond, the flirtatious heroine.

While rivalry among fur traders is not a new subject, but George Marsh, with his intimate knowledge of the characteristics and superstitions of the Indian of the North, gives us new scenes and new character delineations. From the time Jim Stuart sets out with trusty Omar Bolsvert, his half-breed friend, to win back the lost fur trade, until his final victory over his unworthy rival, there is never a momentary lack of adventure or interest.

In securing publication rights on this unusual story we know we have provided a real treat for every one of our readers, and we urge all of them to read and enjoy it.

TELEPHONE POLES ARE NOT THE ONLY POLES

All that glitters is not gold, and every pole is not a telephone pole.

Because the telephone business is so extensive, many people have fallen into the habit of saying "telephone pole" when referring to any kind of pole carrying wires, and sometimes even to poles that do not carry wires. This is particularly true in describing accidents and saying that an automobile ran into a telephone pole.

However, the mortality of telephone poles, as a result of automobile accidents, isn't nearly as great as most people imagine, because so many of the poles that are struck by cars are other than telephone poles.

HYMNS STILL POPULAR—Depression hysteria and cynicism have not lessened nation's love for old hymns, finds Harry Frankel (left), creator of noted radio character, "the Old Singin' Master." QUICK MEAT DISHES

YOU certainly do not want to spend any unnecessary time stewing over a hot stove this summer. You want time to rest, read and relax, to hike, motor, swim, play golf or tennis or any of the other outdoor games that appeal to you. But all these outdoor occupations call for sustaining foods for you and your family. With this in mind, we have been making a study of meat dishes which contain good nourishment and which can be prepared in a minimum of time. Perhaps you will care to clip this out, and refer to it in order to simplify your summer cooking. Here they are.

First of all don't forget the canned whole hams which have become so popular. They are delicious, and last for an incredibly long time because the cans contain no bones and no surplus fat, but just lean meat which you can open and eat, or cook in any manner that appeals to you. Then remember the ready-made entrées ready to heat such as beef à la mode, chicken à la King, chicken curry, chop suey, Hungarian style goulash and Irish stew.

Serve This Cold

That's a good beginning, but summer is the time for those delicious jellied meat dishes which give you lots of nourishment without getting you too hot. If you have guests coming for the week end, for instance, here is a recipe which is easy to make, and which will provide a tempting dish for from ten to fifteen people.

Glazed Tongue: Soak three tablespoons gelatin in one-half cup cold water. Stew for twenty minutes the contents of a No. 3 can of tomatoes, one bay leaf, two sprigs of parsley, two cloves, one-half teaspoon salt, and one-half teaspoon peppercorns; then press through a sieve. Pour over gelatin, add two bouillon cubes, and stir until melted. Set aside for thirty minutes to settle. Add one slightly-beaten egg white, bring to boiling, and then strain through a cheese cloth. Pour a thin layer of the gelatin in a round mold and arrange in it slices of hard-cooked eggs, sliced olives, pickles, etc. When hardened, place in the mold the whole ox tongue from a 14-ounce can, and pour over the rest of the gelatin. Set in the ice box for several hours to harden. Unmold, and serve cut in slices. Listen for the applause.

Another Jellied Dish

Jellied Chicken Mold: Beat three egg yolks slightly, add three-fourths cup hot chicken broth, and cook in double boiler until it is smooth and coats the spoon. Add one-fourth teaspoon salt and paprika. Soften two tablespoons gelatin in two tablespoons cold chicken broth, dissolve in the hot mixture, and then cool. When just starting to thicken, add the finely-cut contents of a 6-ounce can of chicken and one-half cup chopped walnuts, and fold in one-half cup beaten cream. Pour into a wet mold and chill for several hours. Unmold and garnish with bits of parsley or cress and tiny red radishes. If in season. Serves six.

Quick and Hot

You must have some hot meat dishes in summer, too. Here are some which have the merit of being quickly prepared and particularly tasty.

Dried Beef with Cheese: Frizzle one and one-half cups dried beef in four tablespoons butter for five minutes. Add two cups tomatoes and one cup grated cheese, and stir till melted. Add two slightly-beaten eggs and one-fourth teaspoon kitchen bouquet, and stir till eggs thicken. Serve with baked potatoes. Serves eight.

Frizzled Chipped Beef and Corn: Heat two tablespoons butter or bacon fat in skillet, add the shredded contents of a 2½-ounce glass of chipped beef, and let frizzle several minutes. Add the contents of a No. 2 can of corn, and heat well. Serves six.

Tongue and Chicken Sandwich: Place a thin slice of canned ox tongue, then a spreading of mayonnaise, then a thin slice of breast of chicken between two slices of hot, buttered toast. Serve hot.

Chili Con Carne au Gratin: For this all you need is two 10½-ounce cans of chili con carne, one-fourth pound of grated cheese and one-half cup milk. Put layers of chili con carne and cheese in a buttered baking dish; pour over the milk. Bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Serves four.

WINNING CATCH—Frank Lundstrom wears a $1,000 smile as he exhibits the 37½ pound king salmon which he caught to win the Salmon Fishing Tournament in Puget Sound, near Seattle, Wash.

SAFETY ADVOCATE—Traffic fatalities in New Jersey will be cut to a minimum if Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Harold G. Hoffman (at right) has his way. Here he is shown in safety work examining novel safety device on a new type car—a reflex glass tail-light that cuts down rear-end collisions by reflecting beams of approaching headlights. Same principle is used to illuminate highway signs throughout the state at night.

AMERICA'S MARNE MONUMENT—Repaying France's Statue of Liberty gift, this heroic statue was unveiled on the site of the first Battle of the Marne. It was built through contributions of American school children.

BLACK AND WHITE FOR FALL—June Pursell, platinum-haired radio songstress, illustrates the new fall mode with a black heavy crepe frock with wrap-around skirt. The white crinkled fan collar provides a smart contrast.

NEW DADDY—There's new joy in the luxurious home of Ray Perkins, radio's Barbasolist and humorist. The reason? This six-months-old girl, Wendy Gay, adopted by Perkins and his wife Dorothy, who already have a son, Ray, Jr., 8. "We always wanted a girl," he explains.

SIGNALS!—Football teams of the nation add finishing touches to their plays as season draws near. Here is Robert Harbold, brawny center of the Navy team, ready for the signal.

Cook County

Organizations Endorse
$20,000,000 Bond Issue

Wide-spread endorsements from real estate, business, labor, civic, improvement, and political organizations in Cook County and throughout the State, are strengthening the campaign for the pending $20,000,000 Emergency Relief Bond Issue, according to announcement made by Earl C. Smith, Detroit, Illinois, Chairman of the State Emergency Relief Bond Issue Committee, and Fred W. Sargent, Chicago, Chairman of the Cook County Committee.

In their anxiety to prevent the heavy tax on real and personal property which will be imposed through out the state if the bond issue does not carry, thousands of citizens are volunteering to distribute literature in order to secure the required large majority for approval of the proposal. These points are being emphasized by campaign leaders:

1. The only way to prevent the $25,000,000 tax which was levied by the Ill. General Assembly last February in order to provide unemployment relief funds, which have since been expended, is to vote overwhelmingly for the pending bond issue. The proceeds of the bonds then will be used to retire and pay interest on the $18,750,000 state tax notes sold against the tax levy. Otherwise the additional tax levy will be collected next year.

2. The bond issue proposition will appear on a separate small ballot under the caption "Emergency Relief Ballot."

3. The bond issue must be approved by a majority of all those who vote for members of the General Assembly. Therefore, failure to mark the separate Emergency Relief Ballot is equivalent to voting against the proposal and also to voting in favor of increasing the tax.

4. Principal and interest charges on these bonds are to be over a period of 20 years out of a part of the one-third of the gas tax revenues which is set aside for use of the counties. Thus, there will be no increase in property taxes on account of the bonds and no increase in gas tax rate will be necessary.

5. Gas tax revenues needed for payment of these bond issue charges will be withheld only from those counties which have used the state emergency relief funds already borrowed and spent. Each county which has used such funds will be paying from its share of the gas tax that part of the total principal and interest charge for any given year, which its share of the state relief funds bore to the total relief funds expended in the state.

Prevent an Increase in Taxes

Vote "Yes" November 8 on the Emergency Relief Ballot to keep the State Tax Rate from being almost doubled.

EMERGENCY RELIEF BALLOT

Shall an Act of the General Assembly of Illinois entitled, "An Act to provide for an issue of bonds of the State of Illinois for the relief of indigent persons and for the redemption of notes issued in anticipation of taxes levied for that purpose," enacted by the Fifty-seventh General Assembly at the third special session thereof, which in substance authorizes the State to provide funds for the relief of residents who by reason of unemployment or otherwise are destitute and in necessitous circumstances and for the redemption and retirement of notes issued for such purposes and to contract a debt and issue $20,000,000 of serial bonds for such purposes, such bonds to bear interest at not to exceed six per cent; levies a tax sufficient to pay said interest as it accrues and to pay off said bonds within 20 years from issuance, but provides that such payments may be made from other sources of revenue and requires the moneys allotted to counties under the "Motor Fuel Tax Law" to be first used for the payment of the several counties' portion thereof and such direct tax to be omitted in any year in which sufficient money from other sources of revenue has been appropriated to meet such payments for such year; provides for publication and for submission to the People; makes the provisions for payment of such interest and bonds irrevocable and pledges faith of State to the making of such payments; go into full force and effect?

YES

NO

Remember, the proposition must carry by a majority of all votes cast for members of the General Assembly. Failure to vote for it is a vote for higher taxes.

Vote "YES" -- It will save you 40 Cents out of every State Tax Dollar

Neal's Mother Has Right Idea

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children. That prophecy would surely come true if every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Western mother, Mrs. Neal M. Todd, 1701 West 27th St., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "When my son, Neal, was three years old he began having constipation. I decided to give him California Fig Syrup and in a few days he was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all his colds or little upset spells. It always stops his trouble quick, strengthens him, makes him eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

Fable of the Charley Horse

By GEORGE ADE

(© Bell Syndicate.)—WNU Service.

ONCE there was an Insurance Agent named Warburton J. Timmons who often boasted to his Wife and the Stenographer and his Business Partner and Strangers encountered in the Underwear Department of a Pullman Car that he didn't know he had a Stomach. Such gross ignorance would not seem to call for bragging but Mr. Timmons attached tremendous importance to the fact that so far as Gastritis, Heart-Burn and Dyspepsia were concerned, he didn't have any more Interior Complications than a Bass Drum. So, when he saw some less Fortunate Mortal stirring up Bi-Carb or munching Pepsin Tablets, he would grin at the sufferer in a perfectly unbearable manner and pull the Favorite Speech: "Well, Sir, take it Year in and Year out, I'll be switched if I know I've got a Stomach."

Warburton was one of those who could eat Anything and did. All kinds of rich and gummy Pastry were simply Vitamin A to him. He deliberately and in a Spirit of Bravado attacked all of the dangerous Combinations which might properly be engraved on so many Headstones. Meaning as for Instance:

Grabbing Credit for It.

Exhibit A—Broiled Lobster, followed by Cucumber Salad, Tutti Frutti Ice Cream and Angel Food.

Exhibit B—Pork Chops, Hot Biscuits, Potatoes Au Gratin and Apple Dumplings.

Exhibit C—Welsh Rabbit with Indian Pudding and Hard Sauce.

And so on. Then when the admiring Spectators would tell him what a Four-Time Wonder he was, that would be his Cue to explain that, as a Matter of Fact, he didn't know he had a Stomach.

Because he was First Cousin to an Ostrich and had all of the Alimentary Immunities of a Goat, Mr. Timmons assumed a Moral Grandeur which did not fit in with his Personal Appearance or his Social Rating. Naturally, he was hated by all Cripples, Hypochondriacs and Neurasthenics, for the Reason that he tried to make them feel that he was a King on a Throne while they were a lot of Insects crawling in the Gravel.

Along with the Virtues of the non-existent Stomach he advertised to the World the startling News that his General Health was so robust that several Doctors had starved to Death on his Account. To quote his own original Way of putting it: "I haven't had an Ache or a Pain since I don't know when."

Warburton J. Timmons went on for Years and Years leading a benumbed and painless Existence, the same as a Crocodile, and then he got what is coming, under the Terms of the Contract, to every Person who makes Moral Attributes of certain Bovine Characteristics.

One Day he played Golf in the Rain and refused to change his Clothes or take a Hot Foot-Bath because he said he was tougher than Whale-Bone and a little Cold Water wouldn't hurt him because he took it, every morning, just the way it came out of the Pipes. One of those Birds. What will they do when they eventually get to a Place where all the Water is hot?

Joy in Clarksburg.

It all happened next Morning. Mr. Timmons started to roll out of his Couch, in his usual bounding and gymnastic Manner, when some one stuck a red-hot Corkscrew into his Right Hip and turned it around twice. He let out a Yip and fell back in the Covers, a very surprised and grieved Person. He lay there moaning but still refusing to admit that the Laws of Nature, which penalized everyone else, could possibly take a Mean Advantage of Warburton J. Timmons.

It now becomes necessary to ask certain questions regarding the Town of Clarksburg, of which Mr. Timmons was one of the main Ornaments. Why was it, that on a Certain Morning, all of the Birds in the Trees chirruped more gaily? Why did the Tots on their way to School emit Peal after Peal of silvery Laughter? Why did the Trolley Conductors sound their Gongs with unusual Vigor and all of the Merchants in the Business District attack the Day with extraordinary Cheerfulness? The Answer to all of the foregoing is that on this particular Morning the whole World was brightened by the Spectacle of Warburton J. Timmons limping to his office—with the Assistance of a Cane.

It was the Good Wife who told him to try a Liniment which an Indian Doctor had given to old Mr. Keesler soon after the Civil War.

It was Mr. Bromley, the Business Partner, who told him to put a Porous Plaster over the Seat of Pain. Mr. Bromley may best be described as the Type of Man who would, in any Emergency, advise the use of a Porous Plaster.

It was Mr. McClatchey, the Barber in the Third Chair, who told him to carry a small dried-up potato in case he could not find a Buckeye.

It was Herb Ketterling, who sold Fruit, Tobacco and Newspapers, who advised him to get an Electric Belt because one of them done Wonders for a Cousin of his employed by U. S. Steel at Gary, Indiana.

It was Miss Skinner, the Steno, who asked him if he had ever tried a Turkish Bath which was a nut Question, because he never tried Anything. We forget to tell you that in addition to not knowing he had a Stomach, he never suspected that he had a Sciatic Nerve.

Plenty of Advice.

J. B. Cummings, the Postmaster, said that he had used, for Years, a Tablet which instantly killed any kind of Pain, but he hadn't been able to get the Preparation lately on account of the Government stopping the Sale of it because it was said to be full of Morphine. Mr. Cummings was quite a Help.

Not until Bud Harrington, the Grain Dealer, dropped in to see about his Premium, did Mr. Timmons learn that whenever any Part of the Works is causing Misery, it simply means that one of the Vertebrae has jiggled out of Place and all you have to do in order to get Relief, is to go to a Practor and have him hit you in the Back with a Hammer. Mr. Harrington allowed that nearly all of the Suffering which has been experienced by the Human Race during the last 8000 Years might have been averted if more People had been hit in the Back with Hammers.

Mr. Cadwallader, who managed the Local Picture House, happened to be in the Office when the stricken Patient was getting all of the good Dope from the Grain Dealer. He waited until Mr. Harrington went out and then told Mr. Timmons to lay off of the Hammer Treatment. He said that one of those Lads nearly ruined his Sister-in-Law. He said that the real Guy was the Only because he felt around all over you, to see if anything had shifted or turned over. All of which sounded reasonable.

"You'll try this and you'll try that, but in the End you'll pack up and go to French Lick. Such was the emphatic Opinion of Mart Carr, who ran the Soft Drink Emporium of which Mr. Timmons, the Invalid of whom we have been speaking, bought all of his Chewing Gum.

Ebbie Swisher, who carried the Mail on R. F. D. No. 3, took quite a different View of the Matter. He said the only Thing for Mr. Timmons to do was get right out and take a lot of Exercise.

Before 3 o'clock P. M., the Trouble had been diagnosed as a slight Sprain, Neuritis, Rheumatics, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago and Pneumonia. Also, Mr. Timmons learned from Otto Gunkel, the Harness-Maker, that he ought to take Sarsaparilla for his Blood.

In spite of all the co-operative Efforts of the Samaritans, there is no denying that the Charley-Horse continued to jump, so Mr. Timmons hobbled over to see Dr. Good-News Bundy who said it was an Infection and therefore the Sinus had better be investigated, the Tonsils discarded and all of the Teeth pulled out and then, if Mr. Timmons didn't feel any better, something Else would be tried.

Upon hearing this, the Victim rang for a Yellow and was taken to his Home, where he continued to experience the most excruciating Agonies just east of the Pelvis. He retired early, accompanied by an Electric Pad.

There is no telling what might have happened if Mr. Timmons had not arisen next morning feeling O. K.

MORAL: To avoid taking Treatment, go to a Hospital.

Water Problem Solved for People of Bermuda

After having struggled along for centuries with a water supply impounded from the roofs of its dwellings, Bermuda is enjoying the delights of a real water supply piped from a reservoir into the homes. There are no running streams in Bermuda and driven wells always run brackish, so that the natives were limited to the water which drained from the rooms. Hospitals and hotels requiring a more generous supply were furnished with imported water at the rate of $1 per ton.

Bermuda's new source of water, like all sources everywhere, depends ultimately upon the rainfall. But there is sufficient rain, if a large enough proportion of it is utilized, to give every resident all the water he could want. The restricted supply is due to the fact that the roofs of the inhabitants trap only a small part of the total rainfall. The new supply will consist of rain that has fallen on hills—intercepted on its way down. Horizontal wells into which the water drains have been built and these will prove adequate for the cities of Hamilton and St. George.

"Apple of the Eye"

The original application of the phrase, "the apple of the eye," is not clear, some supposing it to be a perversion of "pupil of the eye," and others adhering to the theory that it originated in the notion that the pupil of the eyes is a round solid ball like an apple, says Pathfinder Magazine. At any rate "the apple of the eye" is the symbol of that which is cherished and most precious. The expression refers to anything extremely dear, greatly beloved or highly valued. It is very old and occurs a number of times in the King James version of the Bible.

Self-Praise

The proverbs are rather hard on self-praise. There are several common ones: "Self-praise is no praise," "self-praise is recommendation," "self-praise is half blame," "self-praise is nae honor." One of George Herbert's proverbs says "He that praiseth himself spattereth himself." There is a Spanish saying, "Self-praise disgraces"; said the German one: "Eigenglob stinkt, Freundes Lob hinkt"—self-praise smells, friends' praise halts.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, ©, 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 30

THE CHRISTIAN AND LAW OBSERVANCE

(World's Temperance Sunday)

Romans 13:1-7; 1 Corinthians 9:19-27; Galatians 6:1-10; 1 Peter 2:11-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Galatians 6:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Laws for Me to Keep.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Observing the Law for the Sake of Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Church and Law Observance.

I. The Christian Obligation to the State (Romans 13:1-7).

The believer is a citizen as well as a Christian. The instructed Christian will be loyal to the state as well as to the church.

1. Obedience to rulers (v. 1-4). This obligation is upon all Christians. The civil government is ordained of God and rulers are his representatives.

2. The spirit in which the Christian renders obedience to rulers (v. 5). He should regard it as his obligation, not only because it serves a good purpose but because it is morally right.

3. Method of expressing this obedience (vv. 6, 7).

a. In payment of taxes. The citizen who enjoys its benefits is morally bound to support the government.

b. Payment of duty upon merchandise, and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated, and for this the citizen should pay.

c. Veneration to magistrates, "fear to whom fear." Those who have the fear of God in their hearts will venerate their rulers and representatives.

d. "Honor to whom honor" is due. Civil officers should be honored because of the ministry they perform.

II. The Christian's Self-Control (1 Cor. 9:19-27).

The true way to get people to be free from intemperance is to help them gain self-control.

1. Paul's own life and example (vv. 19-23). Though free from all men, he made himself servant unto all.

2. The Isthmian games (vv. 24-27). Paul uses these popular games to illustrate the need of self-control.

a. Life is a race (vv. 24-25). In order to win a prize there must be self-denial and definite exertion. The Christian obtains life by contact with Jesus Christ through faith (John 3:16; 3:36; 5:24). This he must possess before he can begin the race.

b. It is a fight (vv. 26, 27). The Christian has a real antagonist—his carnal nature.

III. The Christian Life and Walk in the Spirit (Gal. 6:1-10).

Those who are freely justified in Christ will live and walk as follows:

1. Restore the sinning brother (v. 1). "Restore" is a surgical term which means the placing back of a dislocated member to its place. We are members of the body of Christ and the sinning of a brother ought to really to give us pain as the dislocation of a member of our body.

2. Bear one another's burdens.

3. Bear our own burdens (v. 5).

4. Support teachers of God's Word (vv. 6-8). It is incumbent upon those who are taught in the Word of God to give of their means for the support of the teacher (1 Cor. 9:14).

5. Be not weary in well doing (v. 9). Some fall of the reward because they quit even when the goal is near.

6. Work for the good of all men.

IV. The Christian's Behavior as a Sojourner and Citizen (1 Peter 2:11-17).

1. As a sojourner or pilgrim (vv. 11, 12). Christians are pilgrims on the earth. They are journeying to their eternal home in the heavens. Such citizenship demands

a. That they abstain from fleshly lusts (v. 11).

b. Behave so as to glorify God before the world (v. 12). The word "conversation" means behavior.

2. Behavior as citizens (vv. 13-17). He has a responsibility as a citizen on the earth. As such he should

a. Obey all requirements of civil rulers (v. 13). His duties as a citizen he performs as the Lord's free man, not through servile fear.

b. Honor all men (v. 17). We should see in every man the image of God, and in that sense give honor to him.

c. Love the brotherhood (v. 17). The brotherhood is composed of those who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ.

d. Fear God (v. 17).

e. Honor the King (v. 17). This has a peculiar significance because in all probability the wicked Nero was then reigning as emperor.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Many a man lives as though he thought God was afar off.

You may understand love, but you cannot overestimate it.

For the faithful man the way to heaven is right straight ahead.

Washington's Money Chest

A money chest, once the property of George Washington, is owned by Jewel Dodd in Batesville, Ark. The chest is twelve inches long, five inches wide and three inches deep.

It is hand made of red wood and is decorated with brass nails. It is covered with well-worn walrus hide.

Taking Their Measure

"Do those people who moved into the flat across the hall seem to be desirable neighbors?" asked the man. "No," replied the woman. "I watched everything that came out of the moving van. They haven't a thing that we would care to borrow."

Every man's friend, every man's fool.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulus need not worry about growing old.

Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

STERLING FAIR IN SENATE RULINGS

First elected Lieutenant Governor in 1920 and serving continuously since that time, Fred E. Sterling of Rockford has broken all records for this office in Illinois. He is the Republican candidate for re-election. His popularity is shown by the election figures. In 1920 he carried 99 out of the 102 counties in the state. In 1924 he polled more votes than were received by President Calvin Coolidge. In 1928 he was returned to the office with another huge vote. He has served with high distinction as chief presiding officer of the Illinois State Senate and his fairness and impartiality at all times have endeared him to the members of that body whether of his own political party or not. Mr. Sterling is widely known as a newspaper editor and publisher. He is a member of the Board of Directors of Rockford Consolidated Newspapers, Inc., publishing the Rockford Register-Republic and the Rockford Morning Star.

Fred E. Sterling.

When Len Small, Republican nominee for Governor, was Governor of Illinois the balance in the state treasury went up from $15,000,000 to $40,000,000.

Seven thousand miles of roads were paved when Len Small was Governor of Illinois. He is again the Republican candidate for Governor.

Len Small is a man of his word. He is a square shooter.

LEN SMALL'S GREAT BUILDING RECORD

Len Small, Republican candidate for Governor of Illinois, was born and raised on his father's farm near Kankakee. With the first money he ever earned, teaching a country school, he bought a farm of his own near his birthplace where he has lived ever since. It wasn't a large farm—only ten acres. But by long hours of the hardest kind of labor, by close study of farm problems and by wise and frugal management he has increased those ten acres to more than 600 acres. Len Small knows from the work of his own hands the needs of Illinois farmers. Years ago he founded and is still secretary and manager of the great Inter-State Fair at Kankakee.

Len Small.

In 1920 Len Small was elected Governor of Illinois and served eight years. During that time Illinois enjoyed the greatest era of prosperity in our history. Seven thousand miles of good roads were built at a cost of $30,000 a mile or less, a saving to the people over previous cost of construction of more than $70,000,000. Many millions of dollars were devoted to new buildings for the proper care of the thousands of unfortunates in state institutions.

In spite of these large expenditures, under Len Small the state tax rate was reduced to thirty cents and the balance in the state treasury was increased from $15,000,000 to $40,000,000. Mr. Small has been president of the First Trust and Savings Bank of Kankakee for over 25 years and is publisher of the Kankakee Daily Republican-News.

"LEST WE FORGET"
Elect Len Small Governor of Illinois

Len Small is the World's Greatest Road Builder. He paved 7,000 miles of highways and saved the taxpayers 70 million dollars.

Len Small was born and raised on a farm and has lived on a farm all his life. He knows by his own experience the needs of Illinois farmers.

Taxpayers of Illinois had their state tax reduced to thirty cents when Len Small was Governor, cutting their cost of government per person to fifth lowest in the United States.

Governor Len Small increased the balance in the state treasury from $15,000,000 to $40,000,000, although more money was spent in construction work than at any other time in the history of Illinois.

Governor Len Small demanded legislation to uncover the hidden wealth of rich tax dodgers.

Len Small fought for bonus legislation and Illinois was the first state in the Union to adopt it.

Under Governor Small more than 55 million dollars in adjusted compensation was paid to more than 267,000 veterans and their dependents.

Governor Small signed every bill endorsed by organized labor, 66 in all.

Women in Illinois have the full power to vote. Governor Len Small signed the bill.

Better protection for bank depositors is demanded by Governor Len Small; also amendments to the Blue Sky law to further safeguard investors in securities.

Public service rates were reduced under Governor Len Small and the consumers of Illinois were saved more than two hundred million dollars.

Sixteen million dollars were saved to the taxpayers of Illinois under Governor Len Small through not using monies appropriated; over two million dollars were saved by paying cash and discounting bills promptly.

Through the work of the Department of Health the death rate was reduced, resulting in a saving of life of 97,154 persons.

Under Governor Len Small more waterways were built in Illinois than under all other governors combined.

State institutions under Governor Len Small were operated humanely and economically.
